Notes for William David Goins:

William David Goins was a Civil Engineer for the Central of Georgia Railroad. He was active in the route location, design and construction of the rail line out of Florida to Georgia. These rails were referred to as the "fruit line" because of the cargo they connected to the rest of the United States. He was a great story teller and I could listen for hours to him tell about the problems they had with indians, quicksand, snakes, panthers and swamps while building the railroad.

After his retirement he lived in Union Springs, Alabama where he and Ida owned a cotton gin and grocery store.

He operated the gin and a small dairy herd and Ida and Lucille operated the store where they sold their milk, butter and eggs as well as other items purchased at wholesale.
