Notes for CAPTAIN JOHN CLAIBORNE "JACK" GOODRUM, SR.:
Taken from Goodspeed's Biographical & Historical Memoirs of Central Arkansas 1899
Pages 611 and 612 HISTORY OF ARKANSAS.

John Claiborne Goodrum, Sr. The people of Northern Scotland and England have gained a worldwide reputation and have become famous for their sterling integrity and determination of purpose. Among those who long ago sought homes in the new world was a representative of those hardy Northern people who, settling in America, has transmitted to his descendants (the present members of the Goodrum family) all the true traits of character of the Scotch-English race. George Goodrum (father of John C. Goodrum, Sr.) was born in Virginia, and grew to manhood in the Old Dominion, where he married Lucy H. Cocke, a native of the same state. Soon after their marriage they moved to Alabama, and there resided until their death. One of the children born to them was John C. Goodrum, the subject of this brief sketch.

He was very young at the time of his parents' death, and in 1852, when only sixteen years old, came to Arkansas in company with his brother, William Goodrum, a leading citizen of this county, and who held during his lifetime, many positions of trust and honor. The brothers located in that part of Lonoke now known as Goodrum Township. The country at that time was an unbroken wilderness, no ax had leveled the giant trees of the crowded groves; wild beasts inhabited the entire region, and these primitive freeholders eyed with dismay this encroachment upon their native wilds by hardy white men who dared brave the dangers and suffered the privations incident to a pioneer life, in order to build up for themselves a home. Amidst such scenes as these John C. Goodrum grew to manhood, and it was in these early struggles that he laid the foundation for the resolute and sterling integrity that has attended his subsequent life. His education was limited as the facilities for schooling were far from satisfactory at that period. Indeed he was considered fortunate who had the opportunity of attending the district school for a few months after the busy season was past, and many a night did young Goodrum spend poring over his spelling book by the light of a burning pine knot.

He began as a farmer, first renting land that he worked, but by proper application of business principles, gained from necessity in early days, and by his own personal energy he has accumulated a bountiful supply of this world's goods, his possessions in real estate alone including over 5,000 acres. In 1861 Mr. Goodrum enlisted in a company raised by his brother at Brownsville, and was soon after the enlistment appointed quartermaster. The company became a part of Pleasant's regiment, but at the battle of Prairie Grove Gen. Pleasant was killed, and the command was afterward known as Bell's regiment. In 1861 Mr. Goodrum was commissioned captain and served until the close of the war, being mustered out in May, 1865, at Marshall, TX.

In 1870 he located in Lonoke, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits for eleven years, and in 1886 established the livery business, which he is still conducting. He has always taken an active interest in matters pertaining to the advancement and welfare of the country, and has held many positions of trust and honor. He has served both as mayor and alderman in the town of Lonoke, and has for years been an active member of the board of public education. He is past Master of Lonoke Lodge No. 51, A.F.&A.M., and for years was chairman of the county Democratic committee. He has been twice married; his first wife was Miss Sarah Adams, a native of Tennessee, who came with her parents to Arkansas in 1852. Their marriage was consummated in 1859, the relation being broken by Mrs. Goodrum's death in 1882. She left four sons and three daughters. In 1884 Mr. Goodrum was united in marriage with Mrs. Ida Staggs, and to them has been born 3 children, one son and two daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Goodrum are esteemed members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, enjoying the friendship of all. He is in every sense of the term a self-made man, and his success in life is a striking illustration of what may be achieved by industry, economy and determined purpose, furnishing a wholesome example to the rising generation.

HIS HISTORY WON'T EASILY BE FORGOTTEN

Chuck Cuning was a story teller to his bones. Mostly, the stories were from history, his own or Arkansas. He was a "Son of Lonoke," which is what he titled a slim volume of reminiscences.

He wrote them long, he wrote them short. Sometimes he turned them into poetry, like "Gulf Deserted," about revisiting his late father's deserted gas station. "Bypassed years ago by the four-lane, now only wasps, spiders and dallis grass fight over its two rusting pumps standing at attention stuck on 29.9." He wrote of his 12th birthday, when a tornado killed more than 100 people, and he wrote of his beautiful Sophia, "the prettiest, forty-nine two-door Ford sedan I ever saw." On the day he was 7, that his cousin

Eddie nearly drowned and of dancing on Steve Stephens' television show and of how the first time he went, he slipped in with counterfeit tickets.

In "To Kill a Meadowlark," he told of the day he and his kid brother Les did just that and of the consequence: "It was my first kill, and I gathered up the limp bird and we hurriedly ran home to show it to Mother, but she showed no signs of praise." She sent the brothers to their room and an hour later, summoned them for supper. "When you finish this, go back to your rooms, she said ... There on two plates were two small portions of fried meadowlark. "Les was sobbing quietly...I gulped back my tears and reluctantly took a bite. It was as bitter as acorns. Through the screen door I could hear the lonesome call of a songbird..."

He wrote about the day his father was moving their sister JoEllyn's prized piano with a mirror over the keys to their new house and it fell out of the pickup. A month later, a used piano arrived from Searcy. "The keys were worn from years of playing. Many deep scratches shone through heavy coats of furniture wax," Chuck wrote in A Son of Lonoke.

"Jo Ellyn looked at it momentarily then covered her face and ran to her room. Mother looked at Daddy and said, 'She'll be okay.' Later that night after everyone had gone to sleep I was awakened by a low plinking sound..."

It was my sister, sitting at the piano quietly playing 'Shine on, shine on Harvest Moon...'"

Four day ago, early in the morning, Chuck sent one e-mail, went for a walk and prepared a bowl of cereal, his sister told me Monday. He was supposed to report to his part-time job at 8 a.m.

In Chuck's death at home on Saturday morning, history has repeated itself: "Dr. Holmes' call from Lonoke came to me at the pharmacy early in the morning, and I was stunned," Chuck wrote in A Son of Lonoke.

"Charles, it's your father. He died this morning of a massive heart attack."

Chuck leaves Patty, his wife of 41 years; daughters, Caron Grisham and Kristy Stevenson; grandchildren, Shelby and Matthew Grisham and Blake Stevenson; sister JoEllyn Duke Moore; and brother Les.

And a truckful of stories.
